Representative Holman, of Indiana, has prepared a resolution which he will submit to the House to-morrow, declaring it to be the policy of the United States to conclude a treaty with Hawaii by which this country will exercise a protectorate over the The resolution is quite lengthy, and besides concluding with the declaration for a protectorate, numerous other phases of the Hawaiian question are covered. The action of Minister Stevens in originally abetting the revolution is condemned, but, at the same time the policy of the present administration in seeking to restore the monarchy, is not approved.

The Senate foreign relations subcommittee on Hawaii met as usual this morning at 10 o'clock, with Lieutenant Laird before it as the only witness. Lieutenant Laird occupled the entire hour that the committee was in session and proved to be one more witness to corroborate the story of Captain Wiltse concerning the landing of the troops from the Boston at Honolulu in January last. The examination was conducted in private, but it is known that no statement was obtained which did not fully cor-Young and Moore and in many particulars that of Minister Stevens and the officials of the provisional government, Mr. Laird was able to give full particulars as to the time the troops landed, where they were stationed and why they were located as they were, and also to furnish more or less Information concerning the present Hawaiian officials and their capacity for government, all of which is important to the committee in its effort to form a just estimate of this country's relation to the affairs of

The Senate committee on foreign relations had a meeting to-day after the Hawaiian subcommittee had adjourned. The committee had the Hawaiian question under consideration, but it is understood that consideration of the subject was confined to hearing a verbal report of the subcommittee and to an informal discussion of the recent phases of the matter.

FAVORS ANNEXATION. Speech by Senator Davis on Hawaii and Its Revolutions. WASHINGTON, Jan. 10.-The principal event in the Senate to-day was the speech of Senator Davis, of Minnesota, in support of the policy of nonintervention in Hawaltan affairs. The Senator plainly expressed himself as in favor of the annexation of Hawaii and declared that to finally be the manifest destiny of the Hawaiian Islands. It had, for forty years, been recognized as inevitable by every American minister to Hawaii, and no foreign government objected to this plan when consummated under favorable circumstances and conditions. The main portion of the argument of the Senator was to show that the revolution was the legitimate outcome of the usurpation of the Queen and of the attempted proclamation of a new Constitution, and that her ministers had no choice in proclaiming the provisional government, and Mr. Stevens no discretion in recognizing it as the government de facto after it had gained undisputed and peaceful possession of the government buildings and government arch-

In the earlier part of the day and on another subject, Senator Gorman created some surprise by declaring that, during the past three years, the total appropriations of Congress had exceeded by $300,000,000 the total revenues of the government during that period. A large portion of this enormous aggregate is for public buildings, and is, in a great measure, yet unexpended.

Senator Hale reported from the committee on naval affairs, with an amendment, House resolution providing for the investigation and consideration of all matters re-lating to the personnel of the navy. The Senate amendment provides that the inquiry shall be made by subcommittees of the committee on naval affairs of the House and Senate, instead of by a joint commission of the two bodies. The resolution was amended and agreed to.

Senator Peffer complained that there had been unreasonable delay in beginning the construction of the public building at Salina, Kan. Appropriation had been made four or five years ago, and yet the plans had not yet been begun. It was here that Senator Gorman made the remark alluded

Senator Call thought it was important that all public buildings to be constructed should be begun as soon as possible in order to give employment to the millions of unemployed American laborers now in actual need and distress. Senator Dolph did not think it was the duty of the government to provide for general destitution. He referred to the communication of Governor Pennoyer, of Oregon to the President on New Year's day.

"The people of my State," he said, "are indignant, and have adopted resolutions denying the statements of the Governor." Senator Davis, of Minnesota, at this juncture called up Senator Frye's Ha-wailan resolution. The political history of the Sandwich Islands for the past forty years was reviewed in some detail by the Senator. After the Constitution of 1887 was adopted in Hawaii, the following three years was marked by constant quarrels, uprising and occasional bloodshed. He insisted that the evidence contained in the Blount report, instead of sustaining the conclusions of the commissioner, as a matter of fact sustained the position of ex-Minister Stevens. In the revolution of 1889 the woman, afterwards the Queen, now the pretended Queen of Hawaii, was a prime mover. This revolution was to overthrow her own brother. Her record shows that she had violated and that no reliance can be placed in her, or assurances felt that her conduct the future will be otherwise than has been in the past. "The testimony is concurrent," said Senator Davis, "that the revolutionists expected to have trouble; that they did not rely on the United States troops or marines for the success of their movement, and that they were enabled to take care of themselves. This revolution would have gone on if not a marine had set his foot on the islands of Hawaii. All this talk of implied duress of the United States troops by reason of their position is the merest fallacy. The success of the revolution was already assured and complete, and it was a recognition of condition and not a

At this juncture Senator Davis suspended his speech for the day and announced that he would conclude to-morrow. The Senate then at 3:30 on motion of Senator Gorman, went into executive session, and at 5:15 adjourned till to-morrow.

Hint that England Will Interfere.

LONDON, Jan. 10 .- Neither the United States embassy nor the Hawaiian legation has any news of importance from Hawaii. Commenting on the provisional government's refusal to comply with Minister Willis's demand that the government surrender office, the Globe remarks: "The situation is enough to make the President of the United States assume the title of 'King maker' or 'Patron of royalty.' However, it is singular to find the President of a typical republic acting as the champion of an injured Queen. But it is not easy to see what other course President Cleveland could take with due regard for the the honor of Americans. Some, no doubt, would like to see the unfortunate islands annexed. Apart from the difficulty of dealing with Hawaii in that way without straining the Constitution there are other people besides the Hawaiians and Americans who would have something to say in

Kokomo Jury Fails to Convict Leonard Hodgins-Piano Works Burned at Richmond-State Items.

Special to the Indianapolis Journal.

NOBLESVILLE, Ind., Jan. 10 .- In the Henderson murder trial the defense only introduced four witnesses. Dora Gullion and Mary Henderson, sister and mother of the defendant, denied the stories of officers Thornton and McGuff, as to what occurred at the Henderson home at the time of the arrest of the defendant. They were contradictory of each other in some material statements, and their evidence will prove of little value to the defendant. George Griffin, a hardware merchant of this city, testifying as to the calibre of revolvers generally sold, said that more 32 weapons were sold than any other. Dr. M. C. Haworth testified as to the location and structure of different portions of the heart. The de-fense announced that they had no further evdence. PIANO WORKS BURNED.

Plant of the Starr Company at Richmond Destroyed-Loss, $75,000. Special to the Indianapolis Journal. RICHMOND, Ind., Jan. 10.-Early this morning the immense plant of the Starr plano manufactory was destroyed by fire with the exception of two small buildings. The fire originated in the bellying room, and when discovered, about 1:30 o'clock, the entire second story of the north wing was a mass of flames. At 2:30 o'clock the west wall fell and the others fell soon afterward. The works had been shut down but resumed operations a few days ago with about seventy-five men on the pay roll. Six hundred pianos were in the course of construction, one hundred of which would have been finished within a week. In addition to this a large amount of stock and tools belonging to employes was burned. In the rear part of the east wing was the electric plant of the Light, Heat and Power Company. This was also de stroyed, and the city was without electric light to-night. The total loss is about $75,000, The factory was insured for $30,000, distributed in twenty different companies. The electric light machinery was insured for $3,000. It is probable that the works will be rebuilt at once.

MISSING FOR THIRTY YEARS. Private Oscar Hewitt Seen and Recognized in Elkhart.

Special to the Indianapolis Journal. ELKHART, Ind., Jan. 10.-Capt. William Barney, of this city, was with the Union troops in Mississippi as a private. Oscar Hewitt was a member of the same company, and one day Barney loaned his canteen to Hewitt to procure water at a spring several rods from the camp. That was the last time Hewitt was seen by any of the men, and the circumstance was often talked over by them during the war, all wondering what had become of him. Capt. Barney had often made inquiries since the war regarding Hewitt, but could never get any information concerning him. His surprise may be conjectured when he met and recognized Hewitt on Main street here to-day, and soon learned why he did not come back. When he arrived at the spring he was surrounded by a half dozen rebels, who covered him with their guns and made him take a walk with them. After his release from imprisonment he wandered to another part of the country, and but recently came back to Indiana.

Clew to the Firebug. Special to the Indianapolis Journal.

LAFAYETTE, Ind., Jan. 10.-Professor Stone, of Purdue University, has been assigned the duty of ascertaining, if possible, whether a pair of blankets, taken from a burning store at Boswell, Ind., last Sunday, are saturated with fuel oil. If so, the fact will be of great interest to the residents of Boswell. A firebug has been at work in the town for two years. The store of the McKnight Brothers was found on fire a few days ago and a pair of blankets, saturated with oil, was rescued, and these are in the hands of Professor Stone. But one firm at Boswell has fuel oil or uses it. The shed is accessible and, it is alleged, a man, who is known, was seen to go into this shed. GRAND JUROR'S CLAIM

He Has E. D. Fulford Arrested for Attempted Bribery.

Long Distance Telephone Man Was Before the Inquisatorial Body Yesterday-Mr. Marshall's Charges.

E. D. Fulford will now be called upon to answer the additional charge of attempted bribery. The charge is made by a member of the grand jury, and Fulford was arrested at a few minutes past 1 o'clock this morning on Pearl street, between Illinois and Meridian streets. Fulford came back to the city to answer to the charge of forgery, which is being investigated by the grand jury at its present sitting. After his arrest this morning he said to a reporter that he knew nothing of the charge of bribery upon which he was arrested

He said he was before the grand jury yesterday to give his evidence upon the charge against him. He came out of the room with the grand jury which adjourned after taking his evidence. Fulford says he walked down the street for a distance of about a block with Mr. Marshall, a member of the grand jury, and admitted saying to him that he wanted to see each member of the grand jury separately and alone, but if he told Marshall why he wished to see the grand jury separately he did not tell it this morn-

The arrest was made upon affidavit and information, and the capias was placed in the hands of Sheriff Emmett yesterday evening. The sheriff did not know who had filed the affidavit upon which the caplas was issued, but it is presumed that it was made by Mr. Marshall. When the capias was placed in the hands of the sheriff he went to the Denison House and consulted with W. N. Johnson, the special attorney for the American Long Distance Telephone Company, and the two went to the Grand Hotel and asked to see Mr. Fulford. They were informed by the clerk that he had gone to his room. The sheriff and a deputy went to the room and by raising bell boy upon their shoulders so that he could look over the transom found that the room was unoccupied. Upon a table in the room was a revolver and a small satchel. The sheriff came down to the hotel office and there waited for his man, posting lookouts at the room and about the hotel. It was thought that Fulford had received a tip and was preparing to leave the city, and Mr. Johnson, accompanied by a deputy sheriff, went to the Union Station and searched several trains but did not find their man. From the station they went to the Denison House, and on their way "No." replied Vaillant, "I did not aim at to the Denison House, and on their way back to the Grand in a cab, saw Fulford standing upon the sidewalk just a short distance north of the Grand talking to a call boy from the hotel. Mr. Johnson recognized Fulford and the cab was stopped and the driver was ordered to drive back past the men and see if one of them was Fulford. The two men separated, the call boy returning to the hotel and Fulford walking north on Illinois street to Pearl street.

He stopped upon the corner and watched the cab in which Mr. Johnson and the deputy sheriff were riding. The cab stopped after passing a short distance north of Pearl street and as Mr. Johnson and the deputy sheriff alighted from the cab, Mr. Fulford started east on Pearl street in very brisk walk. He was quickly followed by Johnson and the deputy sheriff, who overtook him near the alley between Meridian and Illinois streets. He was stopped and told that he would have to return to the Grand Hotel. He offered no objection to returning, and said he was not trying to run away. He asked what he was wanted for, but was not told the spe cific charge. They returned to the hotel, and after waiting a few minutes, Emmett came in and read the warrant to Fulford. He handed over to the clerk of the hotel $210 in bills and took a receipt for it. He handed the clerk some papers also, which were immediately taken possession of by Sheriff Emmett. Fulford was taken to the jail. As he left the hotel with the officers, he asked if he was to go to the new or the old jail.

Sentenced to Death. Short Work Made of the Anarchist by the Court and Jury-Less than a Day on Trial.

Vaillant, the Paris Bomb Thrower,

PARIS. Jan. 10.-August E. Vaillant, the Anarchist who threw the bomb into the Chamber of Deputies on Dec. 24, was tried to-day and sentenced to death.

The prisoner was arraigned in court this morning. No time was lost in preliminaries. During Vaillant's examination, and in reply to the charge of the public prosecutor that he had been several times in prison for theft the prisoner exclaimed flercely: "The unjust conditions of society were responsible for what you are pleased to term robberies." In answer to a question put by the presiding judge, Vaillant said that he conceived the idea of blowing up the Chamber of Deputies while he was living at Choisy Le Roi, and admitted that he obtained the money with which he purchased the materials for making the bomb from the result of a theft. Later on the prisoner reluctantly admitted that he had received twenty francs from Madame Paul Reclus, wife of the young engineer and nephew of the distinguished French geographical writer, M. Jacques Elysee Reclus. Vaillant, however, insisted that Madame Reclus gave him the money as an act of charity and not as a subscription to the cause of anarchy or to in any way further the ends of which he (the prisoner) had in view. Later on, when questioned regarding the actual explosion of the bomb, Vaillant said that he regretted the bomb did not have the effect he desired, and explained that this was owing to the fact that one of his neighbors in the gallery of the Chamber of Deputies accidentally knocked his arm while he was in the act of throwing the loaded missile at the Deputies. At this point of the examination the presiding judge turned to the prisoner and any one in particular, but I wanted to kill some of the Ministers. All the Ministers are the same to me." Before another question could be put to him Vaillant continued: "It is true I hit some of the spectators, but I only intended to hurt the Depu-ties and Ministers, and I would rather have seen four Ministers or Deputies killed than have one spectator injured." The judge tried to interrupt the prisoner, but Vaillant succeeded in adding: "I am not waging war against the people, but against so-clety, and I aimed directly at these parasite The jury retired at 5:35, and were absent for twenty-five minutes. Upon their return it was anounced that they had found the prisoner guilty without extenuating circumstances. Upon hearing the foreman's answer to the judge's question asking him if the jury had agreed upon a verdict Vaillant' sprang to his feet and shouted: "It is death; I thank you for it." The court then retired to deliberate on the finding of the jury and to decide on the sentence. On the return of the court the presiding judge arnounced the sentence of death and Vaillant, upon hearing the words which con-demned him to the guillotine, shouted: "Vive l'anarchie." The session of the court was closed soon afterwards without any further incident.

Vaillant's Declaration.

LONDON, Jan. 11 .- The Times correspondent at Paris says that at the close of the public prosecutor's interrogatory, Vaillant arose and said: "You, sir, have the habit of presiding in this court. I am not accustomed to appearing here, and you will excuse me if I make one remark. On returning from America I thought I could be satisfied with the established libraries to prepare my brains for a revolution. I thought to make a good living in this way, but my master would not give me more than 20 francs a week. I spoke to him of my wife and child and he replied: 'What is that to me? That sum was not enough to keep me and mine from dying from hunger. Then I felt I must not delay to make my revolution myself, and I took my bomb to the Chamber of Deputies in order to expound my theoretical ideas. As I am not an orator I have written a declaration. May I read it?" Vaillant's address occupies almost a column in a newspaper, and is written with considerable ability. Vaillant will probably be the first person to be guillotined within the prison walls, for M. Reinoch has taken charge of a bill which has already been passed by the Senate, and had just been returned to the Chamber of Deputies, against the publicity

VIENNA, Jan. 10 .- The Gazetta de Venezia says that the comander of the forces in Liguria and Piedmont, has been ordered to complete the arming forthwith of the forts on the French frontier and to complete the "arming of the batteries on the Tyrrhenia. In addition, it is stated, that several army corps have been ordered to place themselves in readiness for the outbreak of war. The news has caused great excitement in Venice, and it is believed that the reason for taking these extraordinary steps is the fact that the Italian government has positive proof that France is aiding the revolutionary movement in Sicily.
